will be responsible for transporting, stacking, and organizing a wide variety of goods using a forklift, ensuring that all inventory movements are accurately logged. This involves working closely with the warehouse management system (WMS) and communicating effectively with team members and supervisors to manage incoming and outgoing shipments. The successful candidate must demonstrate a proactive approach to maintaining a clean and organized work area, as operational efficiency depends heavily on orderliness. Furthermore, an unwavering commitment to workplace safety is non-negotiable, requiring strict adherence to all operating procedures for the forklift and general warehouse floor. While the German language is an advantage in any professional German environment, proficiency in English will be sufficient for operational duties, provided there is a willingness to learn basic German for better team integration.
