and swift flow of goods—from unloading incoming freight to staging finished products for shipment. A key requirement is holding a valid German forklift license (Gabelstaplerschein) or a recognized international certification that can be quickly validated or converted. We welcome candidates with limited experience, provided they possess the right certification and a keen dedication to safety, as we offer comprehensive on-the-job training in our specific WMS and safety procedures.

As a Material Handler, your duties will include operating industrial machinery with care, meticulously verifying item counts against manifests, and assisting with general warehouse duties to maintain a clean and orderly environment. Working conditions are fast-paced and require a strong focus on safety and precision to prevent accidents and damage to high-value goods. You will work closely with the warehouse management team and other staff, requiring clear communication in at least basic German or English. The average salary range reflects competitive wages in the German logistics sector, offering stable employment in a highly industrialized region.
